

Converting to Online Testing

Comments by Tom Ramsay

PROBLEM: A large steel company wanted to revamp their pre-employment hiring. They sought the ease of administration and scoring of online testing through Ramsay Corporation's website.

SOLUTION: Utilizing custom-designed tests previously validated for them, we enabled the tests for computer administration by converting test items, effecting quality control and inputting normative data.

RESULT: Tests results and statistics are now immediately available at www.ramsaycorp.com, and can be accessed locally or nationwide. Decision-makers can receive a password enabling them to review test results. Test administrators can have restricted or full access rights. Cutting scores can be programmed into the system. Summary reports can be printed for groups or individuals and exported to Excel to aid in record keeping. Demographic data can be collected. The number of tests takers is limited only by the number of computers available.
