An organization’s success is based on the effectiveness of its leaders. Organizations invest in leadership development activities, which often include personality assessment. In this session we will discuss how personality assessment can help organizations determine who to invest in and the linkage between personality and the indicators of successful development.