As Social Media (SM) applications have become integrated into the daily life of billions, organizations are exploring how technology enables examination of candidate SM data. It is imperative that HR practitioners and researchers guide appropriate SM usage in selection. This session will discuss trends and updates from research and practice.